The Exotic Animal Training and Management program (EATM) at Moorpark College and America's Teaching Zoo, its classroom, are working to help wildlife by training tomorrow's animal advocates. You can help this effort by joining America's Teaching Zoo Friends and Alumni (ATZFA).

At America's Teaching Zoo, EATM students learn how to care for captive exotic and endangered animal species, and how to educate people about the need for conservation. The zoo's educational presentations use live animals to teach appreciation and understanding of wildlife to school children and zoo visitors.

Your membership to America's Teaching Zoo Friends and Alumni directly supports the EATM program by helping to pay for the cost of maintaining the animal collection, funding new exhibit construction, and organizing special fund-raisers and events to further educate our students and guests.

You can become involved in supporting the work of the EATM program by joining America's Teaching Zoo Friends and Alumni. With your membership you will receive:

- Free weekend admission to America's Teaching Zoo and EATM's weekend educational presentations excluding special events
- Discount rate for special events includes - Spring Spectacular, Boo at the Zoo & Arctic Lights
- Priority notification for all upcoming special events via e-mail

We all share the responsibility of preserving our planet's wildlife. The greatest benefit you will enjoy by becoming a member is the knowledge that you are helping to make a difference to the future of wildlife and wild places. Please join today!
